

Audubon Education Field Trips, Audubon in the Classroom, and Schoolyard Walking Field Trips

Richardson Bay Audubon Center’s educational programs foster a love for the outdoors and inspire a sense of stewardship. Our education programs take the natural world as it happens around us and infuses it with hands on learning and environmental studies.

Our programs are aligned to the California Science Content Standards for each grade level. Our pre and post trip teacher packets include activities to engage students in environmental education while reinforcing math and language arts skills in the classroom.

As we work to provide deeper connections to the outdoors we are also shifting our educational programs towards multiple visit programming. As a result, Audubon in the Classroom and Schoolyard Walking Field Trip programs are now only available to classes participating in more than one program.

This year’s program offerings have changed. Please refer to the tables below for program offerings, length, and cost.
